"During the Francoist regime, the victims of the civil war were recognized differently depending on the side they belonged to."